

The Levantine Ceramic Project – 2014 Mini-Workshop 2
Petrographic Analysis: methods, terminology, interpretation
KU Leuven, Belgium – Thursday, March 13th, 2014

Program

9:00 am – 10:00: Research laboratory: tour and microscope time

10:00 – 12:00: Presentations

- 10:00 – 10:25: Kamal Badreshany: Petro-fabrics of the Litani and Orontes basins: Neolithic to EB
- 10:25 – 10:45: David Ben-Shlomo: Identifying and Defining Petrographic Groups among the Iron Age Wares at Tel Rehov
- 10:45 – 11:05: Anastasia Shapiro: Petrographic parallels between Late Roman-era clay coffins, roof tiles, and kraters from northern Israel
- 11:05-11:25: Anat Cohen-Weinberger: Petrographic studies of pottery from kilns and the implications for interpreting pottery from consumption sites – case studies from Israel
- 11:25 – 11:45: Paula Waiman-Barak: Ceramic Analysis in the Digital Age – new methods of presentation

12:00 – 13:15 pm: Lunch Break (sandwiches provided)

13:15 – 15:15 pm: Research laboratory: thin section discussions

- 13:15 – 13:40: Mario Martin: Regional fabrics of the Iron I from the coastal southern Levant + Iron IIA pottery from the Negev highlands
- 13:40 – 13:55: Anastasia Shapiro: Late Roman-era sherds and samples from northern Israel
- 13:55 – 14:15: Ariane Jacobs: Late Cypriote plain wares & regional potting activities
- 14:15 – 15:15: Group discussion: Identifying and defining “petro-fabrics”

15:15 – 15:30: Coffee/tea break

15:30 – 17:00: Group discussion: Establishing a descriptive template

The workshop will be held in the research laboratories at KU Leuven’s Department of Earth and Environmental Sciences, Celestijnenlaan 200E – b2408, Leuven, Belgium.

